Mayor Walsh sworn in, outlines his changes

Inauguration. Mayor Marty Walsh wasted no time talking about his plans.

For the first time in two decades, Bostonians will wake up today with a new mayor.

Marty Walsh became mayor just after 11 a.m. Monday when he was sworn in during a ceremony attended by thousands of people at Boston College's Conte Forum.

In his first speech as mayor, Walsh touched on a wide range of topics while repeatedly referring to a theme of working together.

"We are a city upon a hill, but it's not just the shining light of Beacon Hill. It's Savin Hill, where I live. It's Bunker Hill, Bellevue Hill and Fort Hill. It's Pope's Hill, Jones Hill and Telegraph Hill. It's Copp's Hill, Mission Hill and Eagle Hill," Walsh said. "We are in this together. ... We will expand opportunity so it reaches every person in every corner of our city. We cannot tolerate a city divided by privilege and poverty. We will protect and grow our sense of community, for it is Boston's greatest source of strength."

Walsh, 46, won a close November election with about 51 percent of the vote. He beat former City Councilor John Connolly, who attended Monday's swearing-in ceremony. Since the win, Walsh has been working on his transition, but he must now switch to governing.

While he's announced appointments to positions including chief of staff and head of Health and Human Services, Walsh must still decide on a schools superintendent and police and fire commissioners.

In his inaugural speech, Walsh outlined specific goals for his term: improving education and auditing public education spending, strengthening the economy and creating jobs, improving public safety, and increasing trust and transparency in city government.

Specifically, Walsh mentioned his campaign promises to restructure the Boston Redevelopment Authority and reform the city's permitting and licensing process, which he called "a complicated maze of rules and regulations."

Walsh also said he would create a new Ethics Committee.

Monday's two-hour ceremony featured a performance by cellist Yo-Yo Ma, who played a version of "Danny Boy," and Irish tenor Ronan Tynan closed out the event by singing "God Bless America," but not before telling the crowd, "It's a great day to be Irish."

Walsh, a former state representative from Dorchester, was called "a good, kind and caring man" and "a dedicated public servant" by Gov. Deval Patrick.

Also speaking at the ceremony was Suffolk County Civil Court Clerk Michael Donovan, who told Walsh, "Never forget where you came from."

Priorities discussed

Violence a key issue for Walsh

Mayor Marty Walsh spent much of his first day at the helm of the city talking about his desire to curb violence in Boston.

In his inaugural speech, Walsh said he plans to "redouble" the city's public safety efforts.

"We have to make our communities safer to secure a future of opportunity for our kids," he said.

Just hours after being sworn in, Walsh met with mothers of homicide victims, police officials, violence prevention leaders and others at his City Hall office.

"We are losing far too many young people to senseless violence," Walsh said.

Getting settled

Walsh walks in to discover his mother seated at his new desk.

A nice surprise

Walking into his new office on the fifth floor of City Hall, Mayor Marty Walsh found someone already sitting in his chair.

"I walked in the office, my mother was sitting in the chair," Walsh said at an afternoon news conference at City Hall.

Before he became mayor, his predecessor, Tom Menino, left him a letter and a set of keys. Menino did not attend Walsh's swearing-in ceremony.

When asked what Menino wrote in the letter, Walsh said he had yet to read it.

"I haven't opened it yet because too many people were in the office," he said. "It's on the desk with a set of keys. I'm not sure where the keys lead to, but it's on the desk."

T slated to vote on new rail operator

Train changes. This week, transportation officials will vote on whether to grant a commuter rail contract to Keolis Commuter Services.

The commuter rail system often suffers from delays during severe winter weather. / NICOLAUS CZARNECKI, METRO

The state's commuter rail system may soon be under new management.

According to a public agenda released by the MBTA on Monday, the Massachusetts Board of Transportation on Wednesday plans to act on a contract with a new commuter rail system operator, Keolis Commuter Services LLC.

The contract would provide the MBTA with commuter rail services for a base period of eight years, with the option to extend for up to an additional four years.

The contract could not exceed $4.258 billion and would include a base contract amount of $2.686 billion.

The current operator, the Massachusetts Bay Commuter Railroad Company, also bid on the contract and said it was "deeply disappointed" to learn through a recent Boston Globe report that the T had decided to go with Keolis.

"It is extremely disheartening for every one of [MBCR's] dedicated employees and managers to read about [MBTA General Manager Beverly Scott's] decision in the newspaper without first having had the courtesy of advance communication from the MBTA," the MBCR said in a statement yesterday.

The MBTA defended its actions, saying in a statement that "the process has been fair, even-handed and by the book."

When asked about the impact on passengers, a T spokesman said the new contract and capital investments would produce "significantly improved service and a commuter rail system that benefits daily riders and supports regional economic growth."

Suspect wanted for attacking disabled man

MBTA crime. Transit Police are searching for a man who beat a disabled person with his cane at bus station.

Transit Police are searching for a man who allegedly attacked and robbed a disabled man at Andrew Square MBTA bus station.

The assault, which happened around 11 p.m. Friday, was captured on surveillance video and posted on YouTube.

The video shows the suspect, a black male, violently whacking another man with a cane before taking off with the walking stick. He is later seen descending stairs with a female companion. The assailant was wearing a red jacket, red hat and blue jeans.

The suspect / TRANSIT POLICE

The victim was hit in the chest and the head, but was not seriously injured.

"We are not aware of a dispute between the suspect and the victim prior to the assault," said Superintendent-in-Chief Joseph O'Connor. "There is indication that the suspect may have been under the influence of alcohol and narcotics, which may have played a role in the attack."

It was not the first time a disabled person has been assaulted in the transit system.

In August 2012, a mentally disabled man was punched and kicked on an Orange Line platform at Downtown Crossing. Five were charged in that attack.

Anyone with information on Friday's incident can contact Transit Police by calling their Criminal Investigations Unit at 617-222-1050.

Man stuck on tracks drunk dials Transit Police

Transit Police on Saturday arrested an allegedly drunk man who called to alert them that his vehicle was stuck on the train tracks in Somerville.

It was unclear how Daniel Kenney, 30, of Dorchester, got his vehicle stuck on the tracks.

Officers responded to Kenney's call and located the vehicle inside the Boston Engine Terminal Mystic train yard. The car was rocking back and forth on top of the commuter rail tracks but was unable to dislodge, police said. METRO

Search continues in Southern Mass. for missing kayaker

The search for a missing Brown University student continued Monday, as Massachusetts State Police attempt to find clues as to where the young hunter could be.

Dana Dourdeville, 21, went missing last Tuesday after leaving his Marion home and heading out for a hunting trip on Martha's Vineyard.

A Coast Guard helicopter found Dourdeville's empty kayak last Tuesday floating offshore, The Cape Cod Times reported. METRO

From foggy to frigid in Hub

Commonwealth Avenue looked more like a London street on Monday morning as thick fog rolled through much of the Boston area. The temperature rose to 56 degrees in Boston on Monday and the warm air combined with the cold, snow-covered ground, helped create the fog. The warm up will be short-lived as the National Weather Service forecasted Tuesday's high to be 16 degrees. / NICOLAUS CZARNECKI, METRO

An open letter to celebrities who can't shut up

Say you are reading this and you are a celebrity/public figure. Let's try an exercise: What do you do if you think of something that maybe isn't the most PC thing in the world? Do you: A. Say it out loud. B. Keep it to yourself. C. Write it in a journal that you then burn, never to see the light of day. If you answered "B" or "C," you have a long future ahead of you in show business. If you answered "A" — we need to talk.

The latest celebrity to fall victim to their own inability to just STFU? Evander Holyfield, who is making a splash with his stay on "Celebrity Big Brother" thanks to an extended rant he recently vented about homosexuality, describing it as "a choice" that "ain't normal" and can be fixed.

"If you were born and your leg were turned this way, what would you do? You go to the doctor and get it fixed back, right?" he said to a fellow house-mate. "You know how handicapped people are born? You can't say, 'Because they are born that way, you can't move that.'"

Producers for the series quickly addressed the issue, saying in a statement that they'd relayed to Holyfield that his views "could be seen as extremely offensive to many people. He was warned to think carefully about repeating them."

Good grief. Come on, Evander. You lost an ear. You must know what it feels like to be different. Homosexuality can be "fixed?" Just how many blows to the head did you suffer during your boxing career?

Winter family night ideas

Snowy night in. Discover five fun family ideas you can do at home.

Family time doesn't have to feel forced. / COLOURBOX

If queuing up a movie has become your default family night activity, it's time to shake things up. Here's a list of fun ideas you can do without dealing with the freezing weather outside.

Get competitive

If the board games you have seem a bit tired, try Shake Up, which Real Simple magazine deemed "the new Sorry." In this dice-rolling game, players try to be the first to get their pawns through the "safe zone holes." Each round only takes about 15 minutes, allowing time for multiple games — and winners.

Fill a photo album together

Instead of relying on Facebook to hold all your family memories, create some actual, physical albums. Before family night, visit FotoFriend.com to get your Facebook pics printed, as well as other pictures you are relying on your phone or computer to store. They'll be shipped straight to your house. Take your kids along on the shopping trip to help pick out the albums. Then, you're ready to get started. Your family will have a great time laughing together and reliving special memories. And at the end of the night, you'll have a priceless keepsake.

Write letters to extended family members

Grandparents or a favorite aunt will love getting an unexpected surprise in the mail, written by you and your kids. Helping your children think of their recent accomplishments will make them feel proud. It's also the perfect time to tell your favorite family stories, making your kids feel valued and happy to be a part of the fam.

Developing life skills

Learn something new together

Whether it's getting everyone in the kitchen to cook a new dish, building a model, painting a birdhouse or learning a new foreign language through a video series together, everyone will get something out of this family night idea. If you choose to go the cooking route, give your child ownership of a task, like getting all the ingredients from the fridge if you have a young child or making a side dish if your kid is older. Helping to make the meal gives everyone a feeling of accomplishment that makes the food that much yummier.

EMILY LAURENCE

PLUS

One more idea

Set up a homemade hot chocolate bar

Give your cup of Swiss Miss an upgrade by going all out. Use milk, cocoa powder, sugar and a pinch of salt to brew a batch of hot cocoa on the stove and put bowls of various toppings out on the table. Some ideas: crushed chocolate mint Oreos, caramel crumbles, mini marshmallows, colorful sprinkles and of course whipped cream. Sipping your warm drinks together will give your family a chance to simply talk and hang out. If your family is too busy during the week to share meals together, this time will feel extra meaningful.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan 20.
Focus on your home and make changes that ease your stress and add to your comfort. A change in direction may upset you, but the benefits will far exceed any discomfort you feel.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb 18.
Make innovative moves that will ensure your financial and emotional freedom. Setting a goal and focusing on your destination will prove a sure strategy for happiness. Keep an open mind.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20.
Lend a helping hand, and you will make new contacts and win support for your own goals. Opportunity is knocking; you need to answer the door.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20.
Don't let opposition stand between you and what you think is right. Choose your words wisely, and don't mince them. Make sure your assessments are pointed and accurate.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21.
Keep your eyes open. There will be plenty of obscure movements underway that could go easily unnoticed if you aren't observant.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20.
You need to go where the action is, and don't be afraid to get physical. Participate, but don't expect everything to fall into place.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22.
Avoid letting a critic put pressure on you. Concentrate on the activities that you feel most comfortable doing, or devote some time to a creative hobby that brings you pleasure.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22.
Make a personal change that will give you something to look forward to. Improve your appeal or fix up a space to help hone your domestic skills.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22.
A positive attitude and a plan will lead to satisfaction and gratification. Love is on the rise, and planning something special for someone will improve your relationship.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22.
Stay calm and be realistic. You mustn't feel threatened or pressured into doing something that you don't want to do. Avoid taking on too much or being too accommodating.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21.
Let your concerns be known. Schedule meetings or engage in an activity that will bring you knowledge. Explore your more creative ideas.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21.
Make changes at home that will help you feel better about your future. A move to a location that offers greater opportunities should be considered.

North Korea can have her

I wish Janet Napolitano would keep her mouth shut and disappear permanently from our lives. This monster made our air travel a nightmare because of TSA tyranny and the fear of health effects from long-term exposure to radiation. Edward Snowden did what was necessary to show us what the government is really up to. This may force the judge to declare surveillance illegal, but most of us already believe it is violating the Constitution.

Although I am not a violent person, I would like to send Napolitano to North Korea.

MANANA CHKADUA, VIA EMAIL

Don't let Iran talks fool us

The threatening behavior of Iran is a vital issue for the United States. For many years the government of Iran spewed hatred while moving toward development of nuclear weapons. President Obama claims this is intolerable and unacceptable.

As a result of the agreement reached between the six major powers of the U.N. Security Council and Iran, the progress of the Iranian government has been slowed, but not eliminated or even reversed. Plutonium production, which has no purpose other than nuclear weapon development, is moving forward at the new facility in Arak, Iran. In addition, uranium enrichment continues beyond what is needed for the generation of electricity.

Considering that the development of nuclear weapons by other nations went undetected by the entire American intelligence community, I have concerns about these issues. In short, we did not know that North Korea, China, India, Pakistan, South Africa and Russia were very close to developing a nuclear arsenal until it was already completed. This is quite troubling and is likely to be repeated in the case of Iran.

Spike through the heart

Pats bit by injury bug again, Spikes out for season

Patriots linebacker Brandon Spikes is done for the season as the team placed the linebacker on injured reserve Monday with a knee injury.

It is the latest in a number of major injuries to the Patriots defense this season as nose tackle Vince Wilfork and fellow linebacker Jerod Mayo sustained season-ending injuries earlier in the year. METRO

Colts ink Branch days before game

Former Patriots wide receiver Deion Branch has signed with the Indianapolis Colts, just days ahead of the New England-Indianapolis divisional round showdown in Foxboro.

Branch has not played in the NFL this season but recently worked out for Indy.

The former Super Bowl MVP (XXXIV vs. Philadelphia) caught a career-low 16 balls with the Patriots last season. METRO

Opinion

MATT BURKE

MATTHEW.BURKE@METRO.US

On Monday morning the Vegas betting line for the Colts-Patriots matchup on Saturday night had the Pats favored by seven points.

If only Suffolk Downs took non-animal bets, because it would have been well worth fighting through that Route 1A traffic, even on Blue Monday, to bet that Tom Brady and Co. are going to slaughter Indy this weekend.

Andrew Luck and Chuck Pagano aren't yet in Brady and Bill Belichick's class. They may very well be the class of the AFC two, three or four years down the road, but as of right now, in the early days of 2014, they are at the top of the fraud list when it comes to Lombardi Trophy contention.

While the Patriots have long ago given up the "invincible in January" tag, having not captured a title since the 2004 season despite appearing in the postseason seven times since then, they have gone 8-7 in the playoffs since winning it all. And we know this: It takes a special breed of football team to knock off the Patriots in the postseason, and the Colts are far from special this season.

The Ravens, who knocked off the Pats in the 2009 and 2012 postseasons, out-toughed the Pats and were absolutely never intimidated by the "aura" of Brady and Belichick. Whether you believe Terrell Suggs is full of excrement or not with what he continually says on TV and radio regarding the Patriots, it's for certain that he and his Ravens teammates were not exactly terror-stricken by playing in Foxboro. The 2010 New York Jets had that same bravado, with Bart Scott playing the Suggs role. New York Giants head coach Tom Coughlin, who coached alongside Belichick under Bill Parcells in New York once upon a time, was certainly not afraid of the Pats' mystique either.

These are the type of people and those are the type of teams that got the job done against the Pats when it mattered.

All of those teams also had defenses that did the improbable. They confused Brady for certain periods. Now, I'm sure Colts defensive coordinator Greg Manusky has a high football IQ. I mean, he is employed by an NFL team after all, and has previously been a defensive coordinator in San Diego and San Francisco. But he has never solved the Brady riddle. Far from it actually. Brady AVERAGES a QB rating of 131.4 against Manusky teams. Remember, the scale only goes to 158. Oh, and that Deion Branch news that broke Monday afternoon? Here's saying the 34-year-old — that's 83 in receiver years — will play about two downs Saturday.

Patriots 59, Colts 17. Money in the bank.
